■ The wooden statue

One of the holy items from the church of San Nicola di Trullas was a wooden statue, made after the church itself and the frescoes, perhaps in the late 14th century. Until recent times, the statue was kept in a niche in the eighteenth century altar, and now has no right arm. It represents a Benedictine saintly bishop, perhaps San Nicola, although there are some doubts, as the saint has no beard, as he usually was. The wooden statue is currently in the B.A.P.S.A.E. Superintendence for the provinces of Sassari and Nuoro storerooms in the former Jesuit college of Canopoleno in Sassari.
